AT LEAST SHE OUGHT TO HAVE A CARNEGIE MEDAL.

Perhaps Andrew Would Not Begrad ge Her This.

WILL STAY IN JAIL.

Mrs. Chadwick's Lawyers Deem It Not Advisable to Get Bail.

Should She Be Held For the Federal Grand Jury One of the Greatest Legal Battles in Years Will Follow.

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick Thursday night occupied one of the scarcely furnished cells in the Tombs. After a fruitless search all day for $15,000 bail, her attorneys gave up the fight Thursday night, and Philip Carpenter, her chief counsel, stood in the corridor of the Federal building at 9 o'clock when United States Marshal Henkel threw open the double doors of his office and led the woman out on the way to prison.

To add to her cup of woe, it was learned Thursday night that a charge of forgery would very likely be made against the woman in Ohio, based on the Carnegie notes and other papers given as securities for loans.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 9.—County Prosecuting Attorney Keeler received this message, signed "Andrew Carnegie," Thursday:

"Never signed such notes. Have no notes out. Have not issued a note in many years. Hope you can arrange to execute affidavit here."

San Francisco, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Alice M. York, who resides at 1030 Geary street, claims to be Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick's sister, and she states that Mrs. Chadwick is identical with Mme. Devere, who served a term in the Ohio penitentiary for forgery. Mrs. York, who is a widow with two daughters, came here 18 months ago from Cleveland.

New York, Dec. 10.—After a day full of disagreement with her counsel as to whether she should waive examination and go to Cleveland, Mrs. Chadwick finally consented to remain another night in the Tombs, but expressed the hope that she might leave there Saturday.

He also declined to discuss the report from Cleveland to the effect that the securities which have been held by Iri Reynolds for Mrs. Chadwick were valueless. Mr. Carpenter was asked to make a statement regarding the nature of the securities in view of the fact that the report said that while their face value was $5,000,000, the actual value was nothing. He was also asked to explain the method by which his client had induced Mr. Reynolds and others to accept the alleged worthless papers at their face value. His only reply was, "I have absolutely nothing whatever to say in regard to the matter."

Cleveland, O., Dec. 10.—After hearing two witnesses in the Chadwick case the grand jury adjourned Friday afternoon until Monday morning. The witnesses Friday were L. T. Whitney, a director, and A. B. Spear, cashier of the Citizens' National bank of Oberlin. At the end of the hearing Prosecutor Keeler said the testimony gave him jurisdiction in the alleged forgery case because the notes were negotiated in this county. Friday's hearing was brief because of the non-arrival of witnesses, the most important of which was C. T. Beckwith, president of the Citizens' National bank, who was unable to be present because of illness. Prosecutor Keeler hopes that he will be able to appear Monday. Another important witness expected Monday is Receiver Lyon, of the Oberlin bank.

New York, Dec. 12.—From present indications it is extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to obtain bail for Mrs. Chadwick, who has

Ex-Secretary Gage III.

New York, Dec. 12.—Former Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage is ill at his home in this city. His condition Sunday was such that only intimate friends were admitted to see him. He is suffering from inflammatory rheumatism.

Her Hope Disastrous.

Paris, Ill., Dec. 12.—Judge Kimbrough granted a divorce to Horace Collins from Rebecca Collins because she wrote a letter expressing pleasure at the death of his father and the hope that he was "in the bad place."

A Woman Stowaway.

New York, Dec. 12.—A woman stowaway is rare on the trans-Atlantic liners, but one was discovered on La Lorraine, which has just arrived here. The woman, Marie Jeanne Caroff, of Bretagne, is 65 years old and decrepit.

Miss Daisy Leiter to Wed.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The engagement of Miss Daisy Leiter, sister of Lady Curzon, to the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, of England, was announced Sunday night by Mrs. Leiter from their family residence in this city.

THE POST OFFICE.

Annual Report of Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne.

Economy and Strict Accountability Have Been Enforced in All Branches of the Service, Says the Report.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The annual report of Postmaster General Robert J. Wynne was made public Sunday. It records a year of most successful administration.

Postal revenues have increased. Salutary changes in the classification of the mails have been carried out greatly to the benefit of the service. Amendments to regulations facilitating the handling of mercantile packages in bulk have been put into effect. At home and abroad postal facilities have been extended. Exchange of money orders with foreign countries has been simplified and cheapened. Parcels-post conventions were extended to European countries as an experiment with Germany five years ago. They have been extended to Japan and the British colony of Hong-Kong to meet changes of trade conditions in the far east; also to Norway.

Economy and strict accountability have been enforced in all branches of the service. While the so-called deficit of $8,779,492—that is to say, the excess of expenditures over receipts—is greater by $4,219,447 than for the fiscal year 1903, it must be borne in mind that the expenditure authorized for the extension and maintenance of the rural free delivery service during the past fiscal year was $4,902,237 greater than the preceding year.

For facility of reference the chief recommendations contained in this report requiring action of congress to give them effect are here summarized:

That proper legislation be enacted to acquire the title of block No. 324 in the city of Washington, for the purpose of erecting an annex to the post office department building.

An amendment to existing law so as to provide for the termination of official bonds of post office officials.

That third and fourth class mail matter be consolidated at the rate of postage now paid on third class mail matter—1 cent for each 2 ounces.

That consideration be given to the recommendation that congress fix a rate of 3 cents per pound, or any fractional part thereof, on packages not exceeding 5 pounds mailed at the distributing post office of any rural free delivery route for delivery to a patron on said route. This to apply only to packages deposited at the local post office for delivery to patrons on routes emanating from that office, and not to mail transmitted from one office to another.

That the inter-state commerce law be amended to prohibit telegraph and express companies, or any of their employees, from aiding and abetting in the green-goods or lottery swindles or any other scheme carried on partly by mail and partly by common carrier, in violation of the postal laws.

That the office of the assistant attorney general for the post office department be made presidential, and the salary attached thereto increased to $5,000 per annum.

That the appropriation of $5,000, provided for the publication of the opinions of the assistant attorney general for the post office department, be increased to $15,000.

That grants consider the propriety of granting an annuity to railway post office clerks who are permanently disabled in the line of duty.

To provide penalties for the sending of dangerous or destructive objects or matter in the mails.

That penalty be provided for the use of counterfeit postmarking stamps for the improper certification of pension vouchers or for any other purpose.

That the establishment or maintenance of private letter boxes without authorization of the post office department be prohibited.

THE LATE ELECTION.

Roosevelt Polls Largest Vote Ever Given for a President.

New York, Dec. 12.—A canvass by the New York Times of the popular vote at the last presidential election is complete except as to one county in Tennessee and four counties in Michigan, for which estimates are given, shows that President Roosevelt defeated Judge Parker by 2,346,169. He polled the largest vote ever given for a president of the United States, 7,640,560. This is more than 400,000 in excess of the vote cast for McKinley in 1900.

The total vote is given as 13,534,119 and that for each of the presidential candidates is given as follows: Roosevelt, rep., 7,640,560; Parker, dem., 5,094,391; Debs, soc., 392,857; Swallow, pro., 248,411; Watson, pop., 124,331; Corrigan, S. L., 33,519.

The electoral vote will be 336 for Roosevelt and 140 for Parker.

Adm. Davis Sails.

New York, Dec. 12.—R.R. Adm. Chas. H. Davis, the American member of the international commission, which is to investigate the firing upon the North Sea fishing fleet by the Russian second Pacific squadron, sailed for Europe.

Consul D. E. McGinley Dead.

Killed By His Son.

Adam Jouett, living near Robinson Station, nine miles from Cynthiana, was shot and instantly killed by his son, Joseph Jouett, Sunday afternoon. After the killing young Jouett walked the entire distance to Cynthiana and gave himself up to Judge Lail, to whom he stated that his father first knocked him down with a chair and then beat him almost into insensibility, leaving him lying on the floor. He told the young man he was going to the workshop, get his gun and come back and finish the job. Young Jouett, fearing his father, ran upstairs, secured a shotgun and started back to protect himself, and, on opening the door, saw his father approaching with the gun in his hand. Young Jouett fired one barrel of the gun, the entire charge taking effect, producing almost instant death.

Young Jouett was almost frozen when he reached Cynthiana, and was in a battered condition about the head and face. He was sent to the home of relatives, where medical aid was summoned, as he is thought to be seriously injured. He is 27 years old and had recently returned from the Philippines, after services in the regular army. Adam Jouett, the dead man, bore the reputation of being dangerous. He shot and killed a young man named Colbin, seven years ago, for trespassing on his farm. Feeling was so strong against him then in Harrison county that a change of venue was granted to Pendleton county, where he was sent to the penitentiary for two years.

The deceased was the father of Mrs. Frank Laughlin and Mrs. Geo. Laughlin, of this city.

He is of the Allopathic or Regular School, being a graduate of The Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery and of The New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, New York City; also of The Mothers' and Babies' Hospital, New York City.

Not So Bad As Represented.

The sensational article in the Lexington Democrat of Sunday stating that "Paris was almost in a state of riot and verging on mob law," is false from start to finish. There were several little personal encounters last week, brought on by too much booze, but so far as the town verging on mob law was all rot.

The most sensational encounters and the ones that caused most of the talk was that of Desha Lucas striking and severely bruising the face of Sherman Stivers and also attacking W. A. Thomason one of the grand-jurymen who helped to indict several of Lucas' friends. It is said that in both instances Lucas was in the fault.

Our city is as quiet and peaceable as any in the State of Kentucky, and if the Democrat will only publish all of the sensational things that happen almost daily in Lexington, the city of churches and Law and Order Leagues, it can fill its columns with sensational reading, without publishing such false reports in regard to Paris.

MUFFLES AND TIES.—Call and look over our large line of mufflers and ties. You are bound to find what you want.

Right You Are, Old Boy.

The following is from the Cynthiana Democrat, and Jimmie, you are right, give 'em h-h-h:

"A number of person from Cynthiana went to Paris, Wednesday evening, to see 'The Burgomaster' at the opera house. The Burgomaster was there with a jolly support, but what kind of a performance he gave is difficult to say. The Paris electric lights took charge of the entertainment and went out more frequently than any man in the audience. While the pretty girls were trying to sing the moonlight, the electric lights were giving realistic sudden-change performances of 'From Daylight to Midnight.' They were such pronounced in-and-outs that they would have been ruled off any race track in America. To heighten the climax, in the grand finale, when everybody was supposed to be on the stage and the curtain should have been lowered in a blaze of glory, everybody knows exactly when the whole thing ended. Those who paid $1.50 to 'see' the show have several looks coming."

Did As We Advised.

On Thursday evening, the City Council, anticipating the notice and advice that would appear in the News next morning in regard to Main street, refused to accept the street and pay any more money on same until it was made satisfactory. This was done after the report of Councilman O'Brien, chairman of the Improvement Committee, had been accepted by the Council. The report is lengthy and called attention to all the defects in the new street. The contractors will not receive the balance of their pay until the recommendations in Mr. O'Brien's report is complied with, and they will not be allowed to do any work on the street until spring.

In the meantime, the city is fully protected as in addition to $10,000 still due the contractors, there are two bonds, one of $5,000 guaranteeing the carrying out of contract and one of $4,000 on the repairs. The city is perfectly safe and we will be out of the mud this winter whatever happens.

ODE TO A FLY.

You harbinger of everything tormenting,
You horrid little aggravating fly.
While I looked forward gladly to the summer
I forgot that you, provoking creature, would be by.

I raved about the coming of the flowers,
And tried to feel poetic 'bout the Spring;
But here are you—with all your teasing powers,
And all my fancies into air take wing.

To-day I tried to sleep at early morn,
But you and all your brothers shun repose.
And while I chased "your sisters and
your aunts,
You, loudly buzzing, sat upon my nose!

In vain I lay upon the table sweets
You lightly sip, your "weather eye" on me,
And with a cruel malice all your own,
You knock your youngest son by my tea.

I try to lie as still as any mouse,
But, gloating in your power of torture
rare,
You loudly sing your scorn of helpless
man,
And take a walk with friends amid my hair.

I'm weak with flying at you round the room,
Ah, now! once more you're standing on my nose.
Just for one blow! Ah! there you're off again,
And half your harem nibbling at my toes!

There is no way to catch you that I know,
And lo! a theme to make even angels
weep,
That I in all my pride of strength and power
Can't smother you and get a little sleep!

CHAPTER XIV.

GRAFTON TO THE RESCUE.

ATTENDED by his captors, Denis de Vitre, in the hateful uniform of the English army, stood bound and facing the governor and his staff in the great hall of the castle. The sunlight sparkled in through the long, narrow lancet windows with their leaded, diamond-shaped panes, and made strange traceries upon the polished oaken floor. Pictures of the former governors of New France looked down upon the little scene from the walls. There was the dauntless Champlain, the veteran La Barre, the courtly du Quesne, and conspicuous among the rest, the grim, eagle-like figure of the greatest of all—old Frontenac. The history of the province was somehow summed up in that old vaulted chamber, and de Vitre felt as if he were on trial before the heroism of the past as well as the disorganization of the present.

"Monsieur de Vitre, you are accused of having betrayed your country by piloting the English ships up the river," began the governor.

"And who is my accuser, Monsieur de Ramesay?" answered de Vitre, boldly.

"Common report."

"And does common report, sir, outweigh the word of honor of an officer and a gentleman?"

"Do you deny the charge, monsieur?"

"Sir, upon my word of honor, I declare it to be false in every particular!"

"But, sir, you were seen, recognized by officers stationed on Cap-Tourmente, on the forward part of the first English ship to pass the promontory. There was a group of English officers around you. You seemed to be pointing—is it not so, Maj. St. Luc?"

"It is indeed true, sir. I saw Monsieur de Vitre myself," answered the officer, promptly.

"If Monsieur St. Luc had seen me one-half hour sooner he would have noticed me standing on the rail of the ship with a rope around my neck, about to be hanged as a common felon for refusing to show the way to the English."

"Can this be true, sir?" asked the governor in surprise.

"On my faith it is. I give you my word, sir."

"We don't accept the word of a man accused of treachery, sir. Although I have no doubt you were on the rail, as you say, yet I have also no doubt but that the presence of the rope proved efficacious."

"Mon Dieu, what an infamous charge!" cried de Vitre, white with rage and passion at this insult, straining to break away from his guards.

The governor watched him coolly until he ceased to struggle; then, nonchalantly taking a pinch of snuff:

"Be calm, monsieur," he added. "I might have taken your word, but there is another circumstance which must be explained, and which makes it difficult to credit your story. The dress you wear—it is an English coat."

"May it please Monsieur le Gouverneur," spoke up the sergeant, "I saw him in the front rank of the English as they charged us. He carried a musket in his hand."

"That is true," answered de Vitre.

"I was there."

"Did you discharge the musket?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Chevalier—that is, I had done so."

"At the troops of France?"

"Yes, but—"

A roar of rage swept through the hall as the men heard this damning admission.

"Why hear any more, Monsieur le Chevalier?" burst out Capt. Rouvigny, voicing the thought of the others. "If he be not a self-convicted traitor, let him be shot as a deserter."

"Messieurs, you must hear me! You shall!" exclaimed de Vitre. "I have been a prisoner in the English fleet. Through the connivance of a soldier in their marine I procured this uniform. I escaped from the ship last night. I hoped to reach the town and warn you and Monsieur le Montcalm of the expected attack on the town before morning, but I found it impossible to get away. I was compelled to stay in the ranks, and with difficulty escaped detection. I posed as a renegade or I would have been killed out of hand. My gun was not loaded with ball. I looked carefully to that, gentlemen. I swear to you I threw it away at the first moment and ran to join my friends. As there is a God in Heaven, Monsieur le Chevalier, I speak the truth! I beg you to hold me until you can communicate with the English and verify my statement."

"We cannot hold the town a week, Monsieur de Vitre," returned the governor quickly. "And to defer your punishment until the English take us would mean to let you escape scot-free. Frankly, I do not believe your story. What say you, gentlemen?"

"No, no, he is a traitor! Away with him!" cried one and another.

"Gentlemen, if I ever escape from this predicament," answered de Vitre boldly, "rest assured that you shall answer to me for your words and actions!"

"This is idle talk, monsieur," said the governor severely; "as the commandant of the garrison I shall order you to be shot at once, upon your own admissions, which you have failed to explain to our satisfaction, if there is no one here who will protest, or say a word in your defense."

"I will do that, Monsieur le Chevalier!" a clear voice cried out from the other end of the hall, as Anne de Rohan, followed by Josette, entered the door and advanced before the chevalier.

"Mademoiselle de Rohan!" exclaimed the governor in great surprise, rising to his feet the while, and bowing profoundly before her, a movement which of course, was emulated by all the officers. "Here is no place for ladies."

"I am a witness in the case, Monsieur de Ramesay. Am I in time to save the life and honor of a brave man?"

"I serve you, mademoiselle, but otherwise your effort is impossible. Monsieur de Vitre was seen this morning in the English ranks in their uniform—indeed he has it on now. He bears arms against us in the field. He admits it. He is believed to have acted as pilot for the English ships."

"This is false, sir!" interrupted the girl.

"Thank God for that word, mademoiselle!" cried de Vitre. "If you believe in me I can face the rest of the world undaunted."

"Silence, Monsieur de Vitre!—Why say you this, mademoiselle?" asked the governor.

"Because there is an English officer wounded and a prisoner in my house, who has learned by chance of Monsieur de Vitre's predicament and who vows that he is innocent; that he did not pilot the ships; that he refused to do so even at the peril of his life, and that he had been held a close prisoner on the English ships since his capture."

"Dr. Arnoux dressed the young Englishman's wounds. He is a captain in the English navy. When he recovered consciousness I mentioned Monsieur de Vitre's predicament, and he insisted that I must come to tell you this story, and if you doubted it I was to ask you to send an officer to question him."

"Why came he not himself, then?"

"He is too severely wounded, sir, and the doctor forbade him to move."

"Be seated, mademoiselle. Let us withdraw, gentlemen, and consider this communication for a moment," said the governor, after reflecting deeply for a short time.

The Chevalier de Ramesay and his officers stepped to the other end of the apartment and intently consulted together, leaving Anne standing near de Vitre and his guards.

"O mademoiselle," cried de Vitre to her, addressing her despite the presence of the soldiers, "this is a public place in which to address you, but I stand in the shadow of death and I must needs take any opportunity which fate provides me. You have long known of my devotion to you. I have not disguised it nor do I wish to make further protestations to you. I only want to thank you, as a man dying, for the brave stand you have taken in attempting to save not only my life, but what is dearer to me—my honor. Thank Capt. Grafton, too, for his good words, though I feel they will be useless. The evidence against me is strong. This cursed uniform is the last straw. Ranking under the defeat of the morning, and with the certainty of surrender before them, they are too bitter to weigh well what they are doing. They want a scapegoat, and here is one ready to hand. Mademoiselle, one last favor. It means but little perhaps to you but much to me. I cannot go to you. Will you not reach hither your hand?"

"They must not kill you, Monsieur de Vitre! 'Tis most unjust!" cried the girl piteously, stepping over to him.

"As for my hand—" She stretched it out, and, though he was bound and tied, nothing could have exceeded the courtly grace with which he bent over it and pressed a long kiss upon it. She held it tightly against his lips.

"You love him!" he cried. "You love him!"

"There is my hand, monsieur!" she exclaimed, as the soldiers withdrew a little, out of consideration for her evident grief. "I would that my heart went with it."

"Monsieur de Vitre, mademoiselle," said the governor, returning to his seat, "we have carefully considered the testimony of Mademoiselle de Rohan and are of the opinion that it is not sufficiently important to cause us to delay the execution. I fear that a few days may see the English in possession of the town, and that, of course, means that you, sir, would escape all punishment. As for the testimony of the English officer, he is in honor bound to extricate his ally from his predicament, and we question—"

"Who questions the word of Capt. Philip Grafton?" cried a stern voice, as a strangely ill-assorted pair entered the hall. PURIFYING WATER SUPPLY.

How One Town Worked a Seeming Miracle in the Cleansing of Its Reservoir.

Just at this time there came to Dr. Moore's special notice the troubles of a small town in Kentucky. At much expense, several years before, the town had built an elaborate water supply system, but it had continual difficulty with the water, says Gilbert H. Grosvenor, in "The Method of Purifying Water," in Century. On examining the reservoir, Dr. Moore found the water packed with anabaeina organisms, as many as 7,000 filaments to the cubic centimeter. A colony of anabaeina when enlarged several hundred times looks like a bracelet of small green stones with larger yellow stones set in at intervals. The water smelled like a pigeon, and tasted to match, and was of a slimy, greenish color. The reservoir was not a large one, being of about 25,000,000 cubic gallons capacity—just what was wanted for the first test. As the algae were so dense, he decided to give the rather strong dose of 1 to 4,000,000. The experiment was made in July, 1903.

The only apparatus required was some coarse sacks and a rowboat. About 200 pounds of the blue vitriol were placed in the sacks and hung from the stern of the boat. Then the boat was rowed up and down, backward and forward across the reservoir for several hours, covering every part of the surface in order that the copper should be evenly distributed. The crystals were soon dissolved, and the party returned to the shore. Dr. Moore knew that the small amount of copper used was so thoroughly distributed that it could not make the water dangerous to drink; but would it be strong enough to destroy the foul-smelling plants in the water? At first the smell grew worse, but he was not particularly alarmed as he had expected that the commotion made in the water would break up many of the tiny sacs and liberate the oil. At the end of 24 hours the greenish color began to disappear; at the end of 48 hours the green was entirely gone and the surface was clear, but the water had a light-brown tinge due to the dead organisms held in suspension. At the end of the third day the water was clear, sweet and completely cured of the disagreeable smell and taste. Tests showed that there was not an anabaeina left. To make sure that the copper had not poisoned the water, Dr. Moore tested it a few hours after the dose was applied and found no trace of the copper remaining.

It cost $12.50 to purify the reservoir, the only item of expense being the blue vitriol, which cost about 6 or 7 cents a pound. The town, which had been spending thousands of dollars each year ineffectually, had no further trouble.

After this successful experiment, Dr. Moore attacked larger reservoirs, with equal success. In the fall of 1903 he sterilized a basin of 600,000,000 gallons in Massachusetts, formerly a part of the water supply system of Boston. At that time the water contained 10,000 organisms to the cubic centimeter. After the treatment he could not discover a single organism. This year only from 30 to 60 to the centimeter were found, and a very slight dose has killed these. The largest reservoir in the world can be treated in the same way. When a very large surface has to be covered, it is better to use several boats, or, perhaps, a small launch, in order that every part of the reservoir may be evenly treated. The treatment costs from 50 to 60 cents per million gallons. July is the best month to kill algae. The organisms are then, so to speak, most relaxed, as they have not yet formed their spores and hardened themselves for the winter. All algae are not equally sensitive to solution, so that the strength of the dose varies with the different species.

STRENUOUS KING OF ENGLAND.

His majesty the king takes all the roles which devolve upon him in his capacity as monarch seriously and earnestly. On the one hand he has achieved more in the interests of concord and good will among his neighboring countries than it has fallen to the lot of many sovereigns even to attempt. His title of peacemaker is not an outcome of court flattery, but a respectful and affectionate tribute to his subjects' admiration. The king, however, knows full well the wisdom of the old adage: "If you wish for peace, be prepared for war." Like his ever-lamented predecessor, who in her will expressed her wish to be buried as a soldier's daughter, the king has always taken the keenest interest in the army, not only as one of our twin branches of defense, but as a corporate body, the welfare of whose members is a matter of deep concern to him.—London Spectator.

FAVORS WHIPPING POST.

Connecticut Official Advocates Its Introduction for Certain Criminals in His State.

A. M. Lewis, selectman of Southington, Conn., advocated at the annual session of the State Association of Selectmen and Boards of Charities the whipping of criminals. During his many years of service as selectman, he said, he had been convinced that there are men who are more brutal than human, and for whom jail or state prison is too good.

He realized, he said, that the whipping post was a harsh institution, but he knew that there were men for whom nothing was too cruel. He told of one man who laughed when sent to jail, and who, when asked what should be done with his children, laughed and said: "Oh, I don't care; kill them if you want to."

"I believe," said Mr. Lewis, "that the whipping post would just about fit such men as that, and I believe that it could be used in such a way that it would greatly reduce pauperism."

Several members said they believed whipping would be a good thing in certain cases. The whipping post will be advocated by Mr. Lewis before a committee of the legislature. There appears to be a sentiment all over the state for harsher measures for criminals, owing to the unusual outbreak of crime during the past two years in Connecticut.

OLD HISTORY IS REVEALED

Valuable Manuscripts Relating to the Early Colonial Times Discovered in England.

DR. CHARLES ANDREWS, professor of history at Bryn Mawr college, recently returned to his home in Hartford, Conn., from England, where he has made some very valuable discoveries of manuscript in the record office there relating to the early history of this country. About $6,000 was appropriated recently by the Carnegie institute for research along this line, which was undertaken by Dr. Andrews. He said that matter was being studied about in different departments, but that there was an enormous amount of manuscript hidden away that dealt entirely with early colonial history here.

DR. ANDREWS discovered in the colonial office alone about 2,000 to 2,500 volumes of manuscripts. The admiralty, treasury, war, home and foreign offices each had some. There was also important material in the courts of law relating to the charters, writs issued, etc.

DR. ANDREWS confined himself in research to the period between 1606, the starting of the Virginia colony, and 1783, the treaty of Paris.

bought of Robert Clark 15,000 pounds of tobacco at 13 cents all round.

J. Will Clay, of Mt. Sterling, trustee for Mrs. Elizabeth Reid
Prewitt, said to have sold to Southern parties 940 acres of land in Alabama, for $12,500.

Charlie Penn, of this county,
sold a car-load of 1,450 lb. horned fat cattle at Cincinnati for $5.25. G. C.
Thompson also sold a load of 1,300 lb.
cattle at same place for $4.75.

For the sum of $1,000 Sanford C.
Lyne, of Fayette county, has sold to W. R. Shields a handsome yearling filly by Imp. Deceiver, and which will be placed in the racing stable of E. R. Thomas.

The best sale of turkeys of which we have yet heard was made by Mrs.
George M. Proctor, of near Winchester. She sold seventy-five turkeys for one hundred and eighty dollars.
She got 14 1/2 cents per pound.

At C. A. Kenney's sale, Thursday, good prices were realized. Attendance only fair. Horses sold from $40 to $100; cows, from $25 to $40;
fodder—18 cents per shock; straw rick, $36; baled hay, $10 per ton, in barn; farm implements and household goods sold well; 3,000 tobacco sticks brought $3.35 per thousand.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr.
King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequalled.
A recent expression from J. T.
McFarland, Bentleville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited.
Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed
by Oberdorfer, the druggist.
Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c and $1.00. 1jan

Worst Of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last?
Such was the experience of Mrs. S.
H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insurferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered.
For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist.

Driven to Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in burns, cuts, wounds, ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Buckle's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25c, at Oberdorfer's
